Dear Mr. Dulara

I am currently working in a semi-government organization and obtained my BIT degree in 2017 through self-study. For self-satisfaction as well as for the desire to find new technologies, many tutorials and online courses have been followed and most of them have been uploaded to my Github account(www.github.com/lakkaru).

Due to my duty shift schedule of fifteen days off per month and flexible duty nature, there is time to do a lot of study and experiments. These days I am re-using the w3schools from the beginning to brush up on my knowledge. Also, I am studying a React JS course on Udemy and I am also involved in a React JS course led by a local instructor.

Due to my solar-powered off-grid system, I am not affected by the current power cuts in the country. I also have a 4G broadband internet connection with satisfactory speed. There is also the technical capability to get an SLT-Fiber connection on demand.

I appreciate this opportunity to gain experience in the practical world.

Best Regards,

Lakshman Karunasena
